Dowd announces Democratic Campaign for Lieutenant Governor

“Enough is enough.”

WIMBERLEY, TEXAS—Calling for a wholesale change in both the tone and substance of Texas politics and governing, Matthew Dowd today announced his candidacy as a Democrat for Lieutenant Governor.

Dowd, who has called Texas home for nearly 40 years and raised four children here, said his campaign will be based on restoring Texas values to the leadership of our state.

“As Texans we believe in the values of integrity, compassion and community—as well as common sense and common decency for the common good,” Dowd said.

Dowd added that he is proud to have been friends with and helped elect the last Democratic lieutenant governor, Bob Bullock, who he said, “embodied Texas values.”

“These are the values we were raised on as children and many of us have tried to instill in our own kids. Shouldn’t we expect the same values in our Lt. Governor?”

“While Dan Patrick has been lying and dividing, he’s ignored the big issues that face us,” Dowd said.

“Patrick doesn’t govern with common sense, doesn’t act with common decency, and doesn’t believe in the common good. He puts himself and the 5% of the state aligned with his cruel agenda before everyone else. It’s his “me” over our “we.”
